

Humor Us

Alison Roberts

339 words

1 August 2005

The Sacramento Bee

METRO FINAL

E3

English

Copyright 2005. The Sacramento Bee. All Rights Reserved.

Need a day off?

August is really short of holidays for most working people. (It's one of just three months - April and June are the others - that don't include any holiday for California state employees.) We need a reason to not go to work. How about you? Pick from one of these suggested holidays:

* We Want Our MTV Day: Aug. 1, the anniversary of the music-video channel's debut in 1981.

* Leave the Building Day: Aug. 16, the anniversary of the death in 1977 of Elvis Presley at age 42.

* Keep It Brief Day: Aug. 10 has been declared National Underwear Day by www.freshpair.com, an Internet retailer of underwear for men and women.

* Geek Day: Aug. 19, anniversary of the birthday in 1921 of the late Gene Roddenberry, creator of "Star Trek."

* Girls Day Out: Aug. 18, anniversary of the day in 1920 when the 19th Amendment was ratified and gave women the right to vote. Only women get this day off.

Go online at www.sacbee.com/links to vote. We'll print the results on next Monday's Page 3. Polls close at noon Friday.

About last week

freshpair

Last Monday's "Humor us" poll asked readers to pick a baby shower gift for Jennifer Garner and Ben Affleck, who are expecting their first child. Here are the results.

Nothing; they've got each other - that's enough. 28%

Kid-sized Daredevil boxer shorts (since Mommy and Daddy met while playing romantically involved superheroes Elektra and Daredevil in "Daredevil"); available at www.webundies.com. 14%

A bottle of J.Lo's Glow perfume (Good for covering up that diaper-pail aroma). 13%

A Bugaboo Frog stroller. The baby buggy of choice for celebs, it moves fast to escape the paparazzi (and costs about $700). 13%

A nanny. Wait, maybe that's not such a good idea (just ask Jude Law). 10%

Viewed but didn't vote. 21%

Because of rounding, results may not add up to 100 percent.